Chapter 27 The Sun Earth

Solar Time - Solar time is based on the 24-hour clock, with 12:00 as the time that the sun is exactly due south. The concept of solar time is used in predicting the direction of sunrays relative to a point on the earth. Solar time is location (longitude) dependent and is generally different from local clock time, which is defined by politically defined time zones and other approximations.

Power From The Sun :: Chapter 3

SOURCE: Abridged from Eddy (1979). 2.1.1 The Solar Constant. The radiation intensity on the surface of the sun is approximately $6.33 \times 10^7 \text{ W/m}^2$. Since radiation spreads out as the distance squared, by the time it travels to the earth ($1.496 \times 10^{11} \text{ m}$ or 1 AU is the average earth-sun distance), the radiant energy falling on 1 m^2 of surface area is reduced to 1367 W as depicted in Figure 2.3.

In the previous topic, we learned that the Earth's seasons are controlled by changes in the duration and intensity of solar radiation or insolation. Both of these factors are in turn governed by the annual change in the position of the Earth's axis relative to the Sun (see Figure 6h-4).

Earth is the third planet from the Sun, and the only astronomical object known to harbor life. According to radiometric dating and other sources of evidence, Earth formed over 4.5 billion years ago. Earth's gravity interacts with other objects in space, especially the Sun and the Moon, Earth's only natural satellite. Earth revolves around the Sun in 365.26 days, a period known as an Earth year.

The positive pole of a planet is defined by the right-hand rule: if the fingers of the right hand are curled in the direction of the rotation then the thumb points to the positive pole. The axial tilt is defined as the angle between the direction of the positive pole and the normal to the orbital plane. The angles for Earth, Uranus and Venus are approximately 23°, 97°, and 177° respectively.
